BREED THEATER.

The Lost Trail, Thrilling Feature Picture.

A motion picture of more than usual merit is the feature at the Breed theater and last evening was shown to a record attendance. It is entitled "The Lost Trail" and tells the story of an escaped convict for whose capture a large sum of money is offered. Stimulated by the prospect of the reward offered, a detective attempts the task of running down the convict, and in carrying out his plans almost perishes in a severe blizzard. When falling from exhaustion he fires his revolver and a lone woman in a nearby cabin, hearing it, starts out for assistance. She finds the man and, despite the cold, to the cabin, rescues him, and he sends her for his tobacco, which is in his coat pocket. She discovers there the papers offering the reward for the criminal's capture, with picture of him, who is her husband. By a clever ruse she steals his revolver from him and keeps it until her husband comes, when the detective realizes the much-wanted man is almost within his grasp and, reaching for his revolver, finds the wife has outwitted him.

The beautiful fantastic story of the Biograph company is entitled "Love Among the Ruins" and is a gorgeous scenic film which depicts all about Mr. J. H. Bond, the new baritone singer from Boston, made a distinct hit with "To the End of the World," which has handsome slides.

By a recent reorganization of the Brazilian national museum, special attention will be given to the study of fiber plants, insects harmful or beneficial to agriculture, plant disease caused by vegetable parasites, etc. The results should be of great value, as many vegetable products growing in profusion in the country, especially fiber plants, have no commercial value because of lack of knowledge as to their adaptability to industrial uses.

A Scotch shipbuilding firm near Glasgow, which has also been making several types of heavy gun mountings to begin the construction of a plant for producing gun mountings. Council J. N. McCann says that when the new ordinance is completed the firm may build and fully equip the largest battleships ready for service.
